New Israeli Law Says Labour, Employers To Use Official Agency

A person who accepts employment in Israel without going through the Government Labor Exchange may be fined $2.80. The employer may be fined $140. These are among the features of a new law that designates the Government employment agency as the only legal channel for the placement of workers. In accordance with the law, which went into effect April 1, the Government took over sixty-eight labor exchanges operated by trade unions.

As these exchanges had been widely used by employers under pressure from unions, the legislation is not revolutionary, says the New York Times. It merely legalized the existing practice, extended the pressure to small employers and introduced penalties.

Stringent control over job distribution is essential in a country of immigration, according to Akiva Govrin, chairman of the Parliamentary Labor Committee, who guided the legislation through the Knesset.

Old inhabitants know the realities and can get along, he said. New arrivals need assistance and have to be shown that they have as good a chance as anyone else of getting jobs without pulling strings or joining an organization. They do not even have to join a union.

Questions such as wages and open or union shops are not dealt with by the Labor Exchange but are left to free bargaining between unions and employers.

Obviously, the weight of the exchange could be decisive in a dispute. Therefore, the application of the Employment Service Law suspended in cases of strikes or lockouts. That means the exchange will not supply workers and no penalties will be imposed if employers can get workers elsewhere.

A "fair employment practices" clause prohibits discrimination because of age, sex, race, religion, nationality, country of origin, creed or party affiliation. Commissions headed by district court judges will adjudicate complaints.

Mass. Jurist Qualifies As "American Mother Of '59"

Judge Jennie Litman Barron, of the Superior Court of Massachusetts, became the choice of the American Mother's Committee for "American Mother of 1959" after an elimination contest that last March incorrectly notified thirty-nine women they were to be state finalists.

Mrs. Barron, mother of three daughters, is the wife of a lawyer, Samuel Barron jr. Last February, she received a life appointment to the highest trial court in Massachusetts, says the New York Herald Tribune. She had served on the Boston municipal court bench since 1937, when she became the first and only full-time woman judge in Massachusetts.

She is the daughter of parents who fled to America in 1887 to escape Czarist oppression. She received her Bachelor's degree from Boston University, later taking her Bachelor's and Master's degrees in law at the same institution. During summer vacations, she worked in a shoe factory and sold Shakespeare's plays door to door.

One of the couple's three daughters died in 1956. All three girls were Wellesley College graduates and served as officials of many civic and welfare organizations.

Judge Barron, who lives in Brookline, Mass., was appointed as the only woman on the official delegation to the first United Nations Congress on the Prevention of Crime held at Geneva, Switzerland, in 1955. She is a former president of the Massachusetts Association of Women Lawyers and honorary president of the New England Women's Division of the American Jewish Congress.

The earlier mixup in the selection of the state finalists was attributed to a "clerical error" and was corrected after two Kansas women discovered that both had been named the state finalist.

"Mothers of the Year" are chosen by six criteria, says the New York Herald Tribune: the character and accomplishments of their children; active member-

Noted Yiddish Writer Was Poet, Editor, Educator

Nochum Boruch Minkoff, Yiddish poet, editor, literary critic and educator, who died recently in New York of a heart attack at his home, 534 West Eighty-fifth Street, at the age of 64 years, was Professor of Yiddish Language and Literature at the Academy for Higher Jewish Learning. He was also a faculty member of the New School for Social Research and the Jewish Teachers Seminary, says the New York Times. In 1952, Mr. Minkoff was Visiting Professor of the Colegio Israelita, National University of Mexico. He had lectured at the University of Manitoba and at other institutions.

Mr. Minkoff was a co-founder in 1920 of the In Sich (In One's Self), an introspective movement in Yiddish literature. This movement broke away from stereotyped forms in Yiddish writing and later grew into a school of modernist classicism in poetry and prose.

Many of Mr. Minkoff's poems painted a grim picture of a declining world. His writings usually were in Yiddish, but sometimes appeared also in English. They were printed in many publications.

Mr. Minkoff's volumes of poems included "Lieder," "Undser Pierrot" "Manoes Fun Latan," "Saim Rand" and "A Shtern Elset." He was the author also of three volumes on American Yiddish poetry, giving its history and analyzing it. The volumes were published recently under the title "Pioneers of Yiddish Poetry in America." He was preparing three succeeding volumes.

For more than ten years, Mr. Minkoff had been managing editor of the Zukunft, a monthly Yiddish literary magazine published in New York, and was a former editor of Bodn and Kern. He was a contributing editor of the General Yiddish Encyclopedia and the Universal Jewish Encyclopedia.

Other of Mr. Minkoff's works were critical essays. They included "Avrohom Reisen," "Yiddishe Klasiker Poetn," "Elye Bokher," "Glickel Hamel," "Literashe Vegn" and "Seks Yiddishe Kritiker." He was a member of the I. L. Peretz Writers Union, the

Mendes France To Deliver Brandeis U. Closing Address

Former French Premier, Pierre Mendes France; TV-radio commentator-reporter, Edward R. Murrow; composer-conductor Leonard Bernstein, and six other leading figures in the arts, science, social service and political life, will be awarded honorary degrees at the eighth Brandeis University commencement on June 7, in Waltham, Mass. Other recipients of honorary doctoral degrees will be: newspaper editor and senior Senator from Alaska, Ernest Gruening; General Alfred M. Gruenther, former Supreme Allied Commander in Europe and now head of the American Red Cross; Nobel Prize-winning scientist, Dr. Fritz Lipmann; Dudley F. Kimball, an early trustee of Brandeis University; Elmer McCollum, public health authority and Professor Emeritus of Biochemistry at Johns Hopkins University; and Israeli army chief and anthropologist, Yigael Yadin.

Mr. Mendes France will deliver the commencement address when more than 800 students from throughout the United States and from five foreign nations will be awarded the degrees of Bachelor of Arts, Master of Arts, Master of Fine Arts, and Doctor of Philosophy. Premier of France in the Fourth Republic, Mr. Mendes France was a member of the French Resistance Movement during World War II. His political career included service as deputy to the National Assembly, Minister of National Economy for the Provisional government of General Charles de Gaulle, and permanent representative to France on ECOSOC.

Brandeis Fellow Leonard Bernstein has won international fame as a conductor, symphonic composer, musical-comedy writer, teacher, and pianist. Professor of Music at Brandeis from 1951 until his appointment last year as conductor of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, he directed Brandeis' first two annual Festivals of the Creative Arts, at which some of his own works were premiered. Former editor of the New York Evening Post and of other newspapers, Dr. Gruening has been active in international affairs for many years, having

A. J. Committee Gives Medallion To Catholic Priest As Editor Dedicates New Center

At the fifty-second annual meeting of the American Jewish Committee, in New York, The Rev. John LaFarge, former editor of the national Roman Catholic weekly, "America," received the Committee's American Liberties Medallion at a dinner session. Former State Supreme Court Justice Joseph M. Proskauer, honorary president of the agency, made the presentation. The silver medallion was given to Father LaFarge "for exceptional advancement of the principles of liberty and equality."

A leader of the American Jewish Committee declared that the improvement of the United States economic status was not reducing tensions among religious and ethnic groups, says the New York Times. Dr. John Slawson, executive vice-president of the agency and an authority on intergroup relations, held that there "is a new form of tension, which is emerging from the striving for social status" among the various religious, ethnic, and racial groups.

Dr. Slawson was one of several speakers at a symposium on interreligious relations at the Committee's fifty-second annual meeting, held at the Commodore Hotel. The speakers assessed the role of religion at home and abroad, particularly in terms of intergroup relations and the orientation of the West toward uncommitted peoples in the struggle with totalitarianism.

In asserting that the American population is "by and large today a middle-class group," Dr. Slawson maintained that "it is here that status rivalry is predominant. The Negro group in the United States," he said, "is also developing a nucleus of middle-class and professional leaders. Unless we build bridges of understanding among the religious, ethnic, and racial groups in the country, social tensions will continue to be with us."

Dr. Arthur Hertzberg, historian and Associate Professor at the Seminar of Interreligious Relations at Columbia University, warned that "the uncommitted world will not rally to the cause of freedom in the name of Western religion, even if it is presented at its broadest, the Judeo-Christian tradition."

He said the appeal of the United States to Asia and Africa must refrain from "imposing our outlook and social forms on other people's cultures," says the N. Y. Times. Dr. Hertzberg stressed that the United States must stand for "a true religious pluralism in which men's beliefs and values can be subject only to the minimum restraint of public order."

Senator Jacob K. Javits spoke at the cornerstone ceremony for the American Jewish Committee's new Institute of Human Relations. The $2,500,000, eight-story glass and marble building is at Fifty-sixth Street and Third Avenue. Ready for occupancy in June it will serve as a center for research and practical application in intergroup and human relations and also as the American Jewish Committee's permanent headquarters.

Samuel D. Leidesdorf, honorary vice president of the Committee, directed the unveiling of the cornerstone. Joseph M. Proskauer, former Justice of the State Supreme Court and an honorary president of the agency, deposited a time capsule containing historic committee documents.

The significance of the institute in promoting intergroup relations and combating discrimination was emphasized by A. M. Sonnabend, a vice president of the agency; Jacob Blaustein, an honorary president; and Dr. John Slawson, executive vice president. The agency itself combats bigotry and safeguards the civil and religious rights of Jews in America and abroad, says the New York Times. Herbert B. Ehrmann, a Boston lawyer, was elected president. He succeeds Irving M. Engel, of New York.

Mr. Sonnabend, of Boston, chairman of the institute's development program, said that the new building would serve as a center for "research and practical application." "Scholars and graduate students," he added, "will be able to utilize the institute's modern scientific facilities for pursuing studies in intergroup and human relations."

The institute, he explained, will be divided into five major centers: Research — This will include a library equipped for the study of civil rights, civil liberties and intergroup relations, and a social science research division. Social Action — This part will be concerned with the pursuit of equality of opportunity as well as the protection and preservation of basic constitutional liberties. World Affairs — This will focus on human rights matters in Europe, behind the Iron Curtain, North Africa, Israel, and the Middle East, and South America. Mass Communications — This will deal with the communication of human-relations ideas and will include press relations, television, film, and radio. Jewish Community Service — This division will serve needs of the Jewish community.

Mr. Sonnabend, who is president of the Hotel Corporation of America, pointed to the strong technological developments that "have made daily life more comfortable and have lengthened man's lifespan." In contrast, he said, the science of human relations has been "comparatively neglected."

The institute, he said, is being organized "as a means for at least making a start toward placing at the disposal of both the social scientist and the practitioner concerned with human relations some measure of the type of facilities now available to physical scientists," says the New York Times. The building has a frontage of 100 feet on East Fifty-sixth Street and of seventy-five feet on Third Avenue. The total space available for the institute's operations will be 40,000 square feet.

Meet the hostess!

In our part of suburbia, there's a get-together somewhere almost every week. Tonight it's my turn, and I'm featuring mountains of bite-size sandwiches and ice-box cookies. Plus several bottles of Canadian "74" Port. Now there's the simplest, most pleasant 'hospitality' drink I know of. It's the kind of rich full-bodied wine that appeals to everybody. I know "74" Port will hit just the right note.

Says Indulgent Parents Sap Moral Fiber Of Young

Parents' ill-considered indulgence is softening the moral fiber of the rising generation in America, the Rev. Dr. Robert J. McCracken said in New York in his sermon at the Riverside Church, one of a series on "The Ten Commandments in the Twentieth Century."

"The universal demand that the young shall have a good time is accepted by many parents as a first law and, naturally enough, having a good time becomes the chief pre-occupation of the young," Dr. McCracken said.

"Such parents deny their children nothing; nothing, that is, except the development of their own personalities in the face of discipline. Coddling parents do fully as much damage to the growing personalities of their children as dominating parents. The young person whose desires and whims are all gratified grows selfish and egocentric and is largely unfit for marriage and the social relationships of life because of his demanding nature and lack of considerateness."

TORONTO MARRIAGES

FRIEDLICH-TENENBAUM

The marriage of Miss Joyce Tenenbaum, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Tenenbaum, 22 Shallmar Boulevard, to Steven Robert Friedlich, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Friedlich, 30 Braemar Avenue, was solemnized at Beth Sholom Synagogue, on Sunday, February 22, at six o'clock, by Rabbi David Monson. The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her Empire gown of white silk peau de soie had a scooped neckline; long pointed sleeves; seed-pearl-beading on the bodice which formed a V in back; and a full bouffant skirt which fell above the ground in front and finished as a short train. Her bouffant veil was attached to a rhinestone crown and she carried a bouquet of a white orchid with white stephanotis and pale pink carnations. Miss Eva Mandl, cousin of the bride, of Aurora, Illinois, was maid of honour. She wore an Empire gown of dusty-pink satin, made with a straight skirt; with a dusty-pink and white flowered head-piece; and carried roses in shades of pink. Mellissa Grossman, aged three years, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a dress of powder-blue silk with a short bouffant skirt; with a garland of blue and white rosebuds in her hair; and carried a bouquet of pale blue and white carnations. Thomas Friedlich, brother of the groom, was the best man. The ushers were: Harvey Tenenbaum, brother of the bride; Bernard Ugar, Jerry Ugar, cousins of the bride; Peter Munk, John Kis, Harold Tanenbaum, Joseph Tanenbaum, and Michael Gorden. Bouquets of pink and white chrysanthemums and carnations, adorned the altar, with two urns of white chrysanthemums; and similar bouquets forming a horseshoe effect decorated the aisle. A dinner and reception followed at the Synagogue. Mrs. Tenenbaum, mother of the bride, wore a dusty-pink, peau de soie gown; with a scooped neckline; three-quarter-length sleeves; draped bodice; and a skirt straight in front, with a bouffant back. She had a matching head-piece; and an orchid at the wrist. Mrs. Friedlich, mother of the groom, wore a gown of light blue, silk organza with seed-pearl embroidery around the scooped neckline and short sleeves; and a bouffant skirt; with a blue and white, flowered head-piece. She had an orchid at the wrist. Mr. and Mrs. Steven Friedlich spent their wedding trip in Mexico City, Acapulco, and Zihuatanejo; Mexico; and Miami Beach, Florida. The bride travelled in a black and white tweed suit, made with a short jacket; and a black straw hat; and had a white orchid corsage. They have taken up residence at 494 Avenue Road. Wedding guests were: Mr. and Mrs. M. Mandl, of Aurora, Illinois; J. Mandl, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. S. Grant, Mr. and Mrs. I. Elefant, of Montreal, Que.; Mr. and Mrs. A. Sterenfeld, of Winnipeg, Man.; and Mr. and Mrs. J. Arnoff, of Windsor, Ont.

MARCUS-SILVERSTEIN

The marriage of Miss Judith Gail Silverstein, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Silverstein, 381 Cortleigh Boulevard, to Martin Stephen Marcus, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Marcus, of New York, was solemnized at Beth Tzedec Synagogue, on Sunday, April 19, at half-past five o'clock, by Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg, Rabbi. The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her white gown of peau de soie, made with a scooped neckline; long sleeves; and full circular skirt which extended in a cathedral train, was embroidered with Venetian lace in wreath motifs. A lace tiara held her fingertip veil and she carried a white prayer book covered with stephanotis and blush-pink lilies of the valley. Miss Shirley Ann Rees, as maid of honour, wore a pink satin gown styled with a scooped neckline and harem skirt; and a head-band of pink satin. She carried a nosegay of pink Sweetheart roses, sweet peas, and freesia. The best man was Leonard Yaeger, of New York. The ushers were: Morton Gurtin, Robert Rosen, both of New York; Herschel Shore and Abraham Ziskin. Standards of pink and white carnations, roses, and gladioli were arranged with candelabra to decorate the altar. A dinner and reception followed at the Synagogue. Mrs. Silverstein, mother of the bride, wore a gown of pink peau de soie with lace applique on the front of the bodice and full skirt; and a head-piece to match. Mrs. Marcus, mother of the groom, wore a gown of shocking-pink peau de soie, styled with cap sleeves and ballon-shaped skirt, draped to one side and caught with a flower of matching tulle. Her white head-piece was trimmed with pink tulle. Each had a white orchid corsage. Mr. and Mrs. Martin Stephen Marcus spent their wedding trip in Jamaica and Puerto Rico, the bride travelling in a beige suit; with a flowered hat in shades of blue; a white fox stole; and a corsage of blue baby orchids. They will reside in New York. Among the wedding guests were: Lillian Rosenthal, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Einiger, Miss Frances Defoe, Benjamin Grodin, Charles Marcus, Mrs. Charlotte Holt, Dr. and Mrs. Louis Sokol, and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Waldman; all of New York; Dr. and Mrs. Benjamin Luborsky, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Luborsky, of Windsor, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dworkin, and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Schiff; all of Montreal, Que.

KALLES-SLIWINSKA

The marriage of Miss Elise Sliwinska, daughter of Mrs. Rochelle Sliwanska, 1246 Bloor Street West, and the late Morris Sliwinska, to Harvey Kalles, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kalles, 166 Ava Road, was solemnized at Adath Israel Synagogue, on Saturday, March 28, at eight o'clock, by Rabbi Erwin Schild. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Albert Sliwin, 673 Oriole Parkway. Her white gown of faille de soie was made with a bodice appliqued with seed-pearl-beading and sequins; three-quarter-length sleeves; a boat-shaped neckline; and a long, full skirt with a train which had similar applique. Her fingertip illusion veil was attached to a crown of seed-pearl-beading and iridescent sequins; and she carried a white prayer book with white orchids. Miss Esther Rich was maid of honour, in a light mauve, silk organza gown, styled with a neckline square in front, low in the back, with a bow; and a bouffant skirt. She had a jewelled head-piece; and carried roses in shades of pink and red. The bridesmaids were: Miss Bernice Gantswig, Miss Judith Kaplan, and Mrs. A. Reisman. Each wore a gown of silk organza in pink and shades of mauve with a square, petal-shaped neckline cut low in back; short sleeves; and full skirt forming a petal effect. Her matching head-piece was trimmed with rhinestones; and she carried roses in shades of red. Harry Shier was best man. The ushers were: Harold Kalb, of New York, and Irving Kalb, cousins of the groom; Bernard Sliwin, brother of the bride; David Horenfeldt, Benjamin Freedman, brothers-in-law of the groom; Al. Grace, Harry Brockman, Al. Reisman, Herbert Goldstein, and Morris Redefer. The ring-bearer was Robert Rotenberg, cousin of the groom. The altar was adorned with bouquets and standards of white and pink roses and carnations; and the aisle with similar bouquets caught with white net and satin bows. A dinner and reception followed at the Synagogue. Mrs. Sliwinska wore a long gown of chiffon in shades of mauve with seed-pearl-beading embroidered on the bodice; V-neckline in front and back; straight skirt; and a trapeze back. Her head-piece matched it; and she had a mauve orchid corsage. Mrs. Kalles wore a draped gown of coral-coloured chiffon, with a square neckline trimmed with seed-pearl-beading; and a head-piece of the same material. Her orchid corsage matched her gown. Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Kalles spent their wedding trip in Havana, Cuba; Nassau, the Bahamas; and at the Di Lido Hotel, in Miami Beach, Florida. The bride travelled in a gold-coloured, three-piece suit; a beige hat trimmed with a gold-coloured and green print silk scarf; and a white orchid corsage. They have taken up residence at 65 Broadway Avenue. Here for the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Kaufman, and daughter, Bonny, of Philadelphia, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Louis Kalb, Louis Kalb, Mr. and Mrs. Abe Nickin, and Herman Kalb; of New York; Mr. and Mrs. David Robbins, of Buffalo, N.Y.; and Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Spira, of Cleveland, Ohio.

Impaired hearing may be more than an inconvenience, it may affect both safety and earning power. The driver of a car may have accidents through this disability. With modern methods of treating ear troubles or with the greatly improved hearing aids, much can be done to improve hearing impairment.

What's the South really like in summer?

Is the South — Bermuda, Nassau, the Caribbean, or Florida — a good place for summer vacations? More people think so, every year. They find all the colour and romance of "abroad" in these islands, as well as the pleasures of the beach (sunshine guaranteed!).

But isn't it too hot? Not more so than much of our own summer weather — but with a difference. Down there, the breezes come fresh from the broad Atlantic. Every day is just perfect for boating, swimming, sightseeing — and there are some wonderful golf courses. The nights are comfortably cool.

Why not think about the South for your holidays? You get the advantage of economical summer hotel rates, and there are low TCA Tourist fares to all the best places. Frequent flights by 4-engine Skyliners, with two-abreast seating throughout.

There's a wide choice of inclusive TCA package tours, which include your air fare, hotel and excursions. Examples: 8 days, 7 nights in Bermuda for as little as $191.50; 7 days, 6 nights in Jamaica for $288; these rates are based on double occupancy of room, air fare from Montreal.

Call in your Travel Agent or TCA Office soon, and get full particulars and colourful literature on TCA Southern Holidays. Make up your mind to have the time (and the tan) of your life this year.

What Today's Child Needs To Face The World

Today's child faces a future of continued conflict and ever-increasing change. To help him live with some comfort in such a world — and perhaps even to survive — parents must foster in him courage, creativity, and the ability to change. This was the consensus of the speakers at a conference of the Child Study Association of America, in New York. The theme for the annual meeting was "Facing an Explosive World: What Commitments for Our Children?"

Rather than encourage allegiance to definite goals and values, participants in the all-day conference agreed, parents can help their children best by teaching them how to meet uncertainty "with dignity and responsibility."

According to Dr. Weston La Barre, associate professor of anthropology at Duke University, change is the one thing to which parents and children can look forward with certainty, reports the New York Times. "The most genuine morality," he said, "is not a rigid reflex obedience to the unexamined past but rather the forging, in fear and trembling, of the best response to change that your best feeling and best thinking can muster."

A family life based on interdependence and mutual respect will provide the best atmosphere for developing the human loyalties and mental freedom necessary for both stability and adaptability, Dr. LaBarre said. "We should teach our children how to be adult in the very process of trying to be adult ourselves," he emphasized.

Attempting to dictate children's values and impose beliefs upon them is useless in the light of today's conditions, Dr. Barbara Biber, of the Bank Street College of Education, declared. Nevertheless, she said, adults still have an essential job of education and guidance. When children are small, Dr. Biber observed, it is the grownup's responsibility to guide and control them without diminishing their powers or stifling their initiative, to keep their sense of wonder alive and give them the means of learning through it and to let them develop the feeling that they can "make sense out of life."

As the child grows older, Dr. Biber explained, he wants "to understand, to know, to feel connected with the world and capable of acting in it." Parents and teachers can help foster this feeling, she said, by making clear what they, as adults, are "for" and what they are "against," by showing their concern for matters "bigger than themselves" and by "standing affirmatively in the face of the shocks of our times."

Children naturally reach out in an attempt to discover and to know "man and the world," Dr. Biber said, reports the New York Times. Adults faced today by new fears of world destruction and by the realization, new to most Americans, that they are not universally "loved," may seek to protect children from a realistic knowledge of the world and "to keep them young too long."

Dr. Victor H. Rosen, of the New York Psychoanalytics Institute, noted that man is threatened by destructive forces, many of them totally beyond his control. If it is true that mankind lives in greater dread today because of the power of the atom, he said, "it is precisely because he himself has control of it." There is evidence, he said, that "man's greatest fear is of himself and his fellows."

The ability for individual "self-transformation and self-transcendence" is essential to the continuing growth of nations and individuals, Dr. Karl W. Deutsch, Professor of Political Science, Yale University, said.

Daughter Of Irving Berlin Weds In R.C. Church

The chapel of St. Thomas More's Roman Catholic Church was the scene of the marriage of Miss Linda Louise Berlin to Edouard Charles Emmet. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Berlin of New York. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Watson C. Emmet, and the late Mr. Emmet.

The Rev. Robert Kelly performed the ceremony in the presence of the immediate families of the couple. A small reception was given at the home of the bride's parents.

Mr. Berlin, who is the noted song writer, gave his daughter in marriage, says the New York Times. She was attired in a floor-length gown of ivory duchesse satin, made with a fitted bodice trimmed with rose point lace, long sleeves and a skirt ending in a flared train. With it she wore an heirloom mantilla of rosepoint lace, and carried an old-fashioned bouquet of lilies of the valley, white roses and lilacs.

Miss Elizabeth Irving Berlin, who was her sister's maid of honor, wore a floor-length gown of rose-colored peau soie silk taffeta with a matching headdress. She carried an old-fashioned bouquet of pink roses.

Elizabeth Esther Barrett, the bride's niece, and Daphne Dominique Emmett, niece of the bridegroom, were flower girls. Their floor-length dresses were fashioned of ivory silk taffeta with pink sashes and they had matching pink slippers. Their headdresses and bouquets were made of small pink rosebuds. John Trites served as best man.

Mrs. Emmett graduated from the Chapin School and the American Academy of Dramatic Arts, says the New York Times. She made her debut in 1950 and was a member that year of the Junior Assemblies.

She is a granddaughter of the late Mrs. Dear Blake and the late Clarence H. Mackay; and of the late Rabbi and Mrs. Moses Baline; all of New York.

The bridegroom graduated in 1949 from St. Mark's School and in 1952 from Harvard College, where he belonged to the Iriquois Club. He is with Dreyfus & Co., stockbrokers, and served with Army Intelligence from 1952 to 1954. Mr. Emmet is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Harry Coster Emmet of New York. After a wedding trip, the couple will reside in New York.

Exhibit Shows Life Of The "Shtetl" In Wood Sculpture

The life of the "shtetl", the Jewish village of Eastern Europe obliterated by the Nazis, is recreated in an exhibit of forty-two wood carvings by Berel Satt sponsored by the American Jewish Congress. The wood sculptures and bas-reliefs will be shown at Stephen Wise Congress House in New York until May 29.

Commemorating the sixteenth anniversary of the battle of the Warsaw Ghetto, the exhibit preserves in simple, classical form the mode of life of the poor Jewish town of a by-gone day. The artist, Berel Satt, now 79 years old and living in Los Angeles, Cal., was born in Poland. In the carvings, Mr. Satt captures the dignity and nobility of life in the poor Jewish town, the love of Torah, and the love of man for his fellowman.

The Satt carvings of life in the "shtetl" are part of the collection of the Morris L. Schaver Foundation of Detroit, Mich., and the exhibit has been made possible through the generosity of Mr. and Mrs. Schaver. Mr. Schaver and his wife, the noted singer, Emma Schaver, are active in Jewish and cultural affairs. They plan to exhibit the Satt carvings in every major Jewish community in the world. The collection will eventually find its permanent home in Israel.

In reviewing Mr. Satt's wood sculptures and bas-reliefs, Arthur Miller, art critic of the Los Angeles Times, wrote: "Sculpture, like anything else, has its fashions, and the kind that Berel Satt carves so lovingly in wood is not the sort that is fashionable in the 1950's. But such carving has been fashionable before and will be again because it is honest, sensitively done, conveys meaning, and arouses feeling in the beholder.

"Many elements have joined to give this gallery of Polish Jews its peculiar poignance. The types depicted are passing from the page of history, often in dreadful tragedy. The artist remembers these students, tailors, farmers, and other people from boyhood with the tenderness which clings to youthful memories. And he is a complete master of his craft. "He loves the people he depicts and this love shines out from every line and plane of the carven wood."

The exhibit was formally opened at a reception at Stephen Wise Congress House, the national headquarters of the American Jewish Congress. Speakers included Dr. Joachim Prinz, national president of the American Jewish Congress; Joseph Rosenzaft, former chairman of the Central Committee of Displaced Jews in Germany; and Mr. Schaver. Mrs. Schaver sang.

of Jewish Women: A four-day biennial meeting, with one hundred delegates from across Canada, was held in Ottawa. Four scholarships of $500.00 each, will be given to public health officials for study and work in gerontology, the problems of aging and the aged. Two fellowships of $250.00 each will be offered to volunteer members of the organization who wish to take special training in gerontology. Miss Joan Davidovitz, aged eighteen years, of Hamilton, Ont., will receive a $1000.00 fellowship from the Irene Samuel Fund, set up to further the education and training of a young Canadian Jewish woman. The fund honors Mrs. Samuel, of Toronto, who is the Council's honorary president. Miss Davidovitz will continue music studies at the University of Toronto. The program was conducted by Saul Hayes, of Montreal, national executive-director of the Canadian Jewish Congress. Mrs. N. I. Zemans, of Calgary, Alta., was elected national president. An active member of the organization for twenty-four years, and a national vice-president for twelve years, Mrs. Zemans succeeds Dr. Reva Gerstein, of Toronto. Mr. and Mrs. N. I. Zemans have a son, Fred Zemans, aged twenty-one years; and a daughter, Gail, fourteen. Other officers are: vice-presidents: Mesdames N. F. Gropper, of Saskatoon, Sask; Abe. Hollenberg, of Winnipeg, Man.; Abe. Levine, of Toronto, Ont.; Norman Loeb, of Ottawa, Ont.; and L. J. Nothin, of Montreal, Que. The Making Of A Canadian "Sky Pilot"

BY RABBI SAMUEL M. BURSTEIN, AGUDATH ISRAEL CONGREGATION, OTTAWA, ONTARIO

My training, education and years of preparation began moving toward their climactic application in the summer of 1947. The American army of occupation in Germany was still responsible for the supervision and protection of displaced persons in its area. Since the war, survivors of the crematoria, as well as refugees, were herded into camps, usually former German army barracks, to be cared for by the victorious armies and by international organizations. Of the innocent flotsam of mankind thus given a new lease on life, about two thirds were Jewish.

Most of these had suffered doubly: they had been persecuted and anathemized by both Nazi and Communist. Both authoritarian interpretations of society realized that the Jews would always prove a thorn to any dictatorial system. The victorious U.S. Army assigned Jewish chaplains to the various civilian administration sections to serve as liaison with the camps. I was invited to become one of these "D.P. Chaplains", was placed on active duty and flown to Germany within one week, and assigned to the Wetzlar Military Post. This was the northernmost American area, touching both the British and the Russian zones of occupation.

The office to which I was attached supervised about thirty camps, homes, and hospitals in the province of Hesse. Refugees were divided into national, racial, or linguistic groups; the hatreds engendered by the war made it impossible for different groups to live together. Furthermore, it was hard to find any group which had not at some time been at war with one of the others or had been persecuted by another. Twenty of our installations were Jewish, with Latvians, Poles, Czechs, and others making up the rest.

Inasmuch as IRO, UNRRA, the Jewish Joint Distribution Committee, the Jewish Agency for Palestine, the British Jewish Relief Organization, the International YMCA, the Red Cross, Quakers, Unitarians, and other private groups were now supplying the camps with most of their needs (a certain amount of their food came from the German economy), our duties were few. There were about a half dozen officers in our unit, our main task being to visit all of the camps in turn, reporting on such matters as cleanliness, adequacy of supplies, changes in population, medical facilities, relationships with local citizenry, etc. This required travelling several hundred miles each week in jeeps and walking through the camps, looking in on private quarters, the messing facilities, interviewing individuals, and examining records.

The level of living was unbelievably low. Dozens of families would be quartered, for years on end, in halls intended for soldiers, with toilet and bathing equipment for a tenth their number. The more fastidious families would erect flimsy walls between their own floor space and that of their neighbors, using blankets, pilfered ply wood, even a stack of valises. In some camps the families would use mess halls; in others, each would cook on its own stove in a corner of its room. Food for minimum subsistance was supplied by the responsible organizations at about eighteen hundred calories per person per day. The constant request of the people was for "Food, not calories". The staple diet was bread and margarine, with potatoes, meat, turnips, and butter on occasion.

A family which had not suffered the loss of at least one member was a rarity, and visitors to camps would be introduced, as to a museum exhibit, to a family which had managed to keep itself together through slaughter and wandering. No one had any possessions from before the war. The only personal property they owned was on their backs or in their valises. This led to some misunderstanding on the part of American visitors.

All earnings and savings were put into easily transportable goods, such as cameras and watches, so that one could represent the entire wealth of a family, although to an American such items are signs of opulence. Relief organizations were often embarrassed when Congressional committees asked why it was necessary to supply relief to people who owned cameras that a congressman could not afford to buy (although he might own his home, car, and have substantial savings and insurance).

There were innumerable human smuggling rings operating in all directions. For about three hundred dollars it was possible to arrange for a person to escape from behind the Iron Curtain. Several organizations, working like the Scarlet Pimpernel of older days, worked at mass exodus, often with the tacit connivance of governments. On my arrival, the escape of Jews from Romania was at its height, directed by the "Breycha".

Often, as many as three hundred people would arrive in one of our camps in the middle of the night, either by train or by truck, and by the morning would be completely absorbed into the camp population, with quarters and false papers, so that no inspector would be the wiser. The story of this smuggling, amounting to several hundred thousand refugees from other Iron Curtain countries, as well, has been described, to some extent, in various books. Most of the details must remain secret. My role in this work was very minor, and I cannot claim credit for having done even a fraction of the work other chaplains and relief workers, at the risk of their lives, careers, and reputations, carried out.

There was, as well, smuggling away from Germany. Those fortunate enough to establish some citizenship or to purchase forged papers of the kind consuls insist on, could go, in small numbers, to the Americas. Quite a few relocated in Europe itself. Only a small percentage, however, were accepted anywhere but by the Jewish community in Palestine, which engaged in a contest of wits with the British Colonial Office in carrying on an underground migration to Mandated Palestine.

Due to this turn-over, most of the survivors of Hitler's death camps had left by the time I arrived in Europe, and the camps were now primarily inhabited by recent refugees from Russian-occupied countries. These people, having lived under Communist domination (whether in Poland, the invaded Baltic countries, or as slave workers in the far corners of the USSR) formed a strong body of convinced anti-Communists. It is unfortunate that the west was not prepared to trust and welcome them as it did a few years ago with the Hungarians. The Communist Party of Israel, for example, is smaller and less effective than that in any democracy overseas due to the intimate knowledge so many Israelis have of Russia.

While working in the camps I learned more about human nature and humanity in general than one ever could in a stable country such as Canada or the United States, even in delinquent and criminal circles. I came to appreciate the strength of the human spirit and its recuperative powers. It is possible to maintain life and a semblance of culture in a minimum subsistence level, in communities with no privacy, where entire families share roofs and walls with other families.

I met people who had lost everything, family, homes, names, and citizenship, who were denied productive occupation (to avoid undermining the German labor market), people who had no possessions other than what they could carry on their backs, and who could yet manage to live without security or even necessities for over a decade without losing their humanity, hopefulness, mental stability, and decency. Most encouraging of all, the years of indolence and pauperization, of conniving, of contempt for repressive law and order, could be overcome in a few months of proper social living in the countries which received them.

For a month I lived as one of them, with a false name, unable to contact my family in the States, living wherever the relief organizations might assign me, carrying all my earthly possessions in four valises. Two of them held former army and civilian clothing with my name; the other set of luggage was entirely nameless. I was ready, if necessary, to jettison all evidence of my American origin and become irretrievably David Czupak, the alias listed in my refugee papers.

My transition was made in October 1948. When the U.N. authorized (November, 1957) the establishment of a Jewish state in part of Palestine, the rest to be organized as a self-governing Arab state, the Jewish refugees were over-joyed. It would now be possible for them to emigrate from the camps legally and re-establish their lives in the redeemed swamps and deserts of Israel. In May, 1948, when England left Palestine without stabilizing the situation, members of the Arab League proclaimed their opposition to the UN resolution, and invaded Palestine. I felt that I could best serve the homeless wanderers by safeguarding their prospective home. I applied for my discharge from the Army.

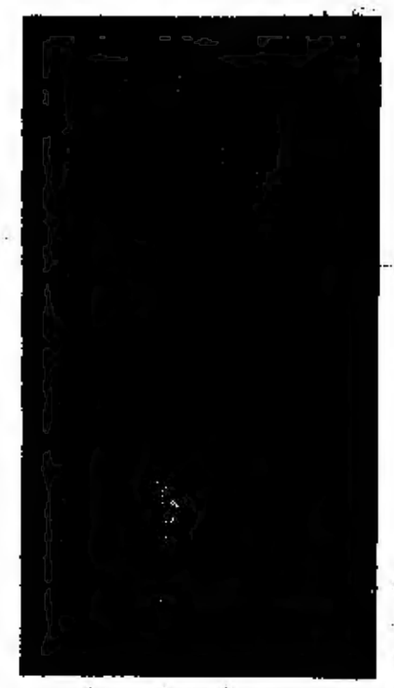
Famed Mayor Hushi, Of Haifa To Tour U.S. For Bond Drive

Mayor Abba Hushi, of Haifa, Israel's major seaport and industrial center, will arrive in the United States on May 25 for a month-long tour of key cities for the 1959 State of Israel Bond Campaign, which seeks to raise $75,000,000 in investment capital for Israel's development and for the economic absorption of recent immigrants. With him as Mayor, Haifa, Israel's "queen city" and principal seaport has undergone a vast expansion program financed in large measure by Israel Bond funds. Hundreds of new factories have been constructed in the Haifa area, where the country's largest and heaviest industries have also been expanded for production of domestic goods and exports such as chemicals, chemical fertilizers, automobiles, cement, glass, marble, paints, edible oils, radio and electrical equipment.

Five years ago, Mayor Hushi instituted an enlargement project for the harbor of Haifa, with the result that its capacity has been increased from 1,800,000 to 4,000,000 tons a year. The role of Haifa as an industrial and shipping center, combined with its beautiful scenic setting on the slopes of Mount Carmel, have evoked descriptions of the city as a blend of Pittsburgh and San Francisco. The Mayor is noted for the promotion of friendship between the Jewish and Arab citizens of Israel. At 56, he is a veteran of over thirty years of pioneering effort in the Jewish homeland, as a drainer of swamps, road builder, stevedore, labor leader, and Secretary-General of the Haifa Workers' Council. Following Israel's proclamation of independence in 1948, he was elected as a member of the new nation's first Knesset (Parliament). Mayor Hushi will speak in: New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Boston, Detroit, New Haven, Newark, Paterson, Jersey City, Milwaukee, Chicago, San Francisco, Los Angeles.



J. John Shulman, F.C.A., 309 Bicknell Avenue, Toronto, was elected a Fellow of the Institute of Chartered Accountants of Ontario. Elections are held at three-year intervals, and Fellows number one hundred and eighty in a total membership of almost thirty-four hundred. Mr. Shulman is a past president of Holy Blossom Temple Brotherhood, and a former member of the board of trustees. He serves as a member of the finance committee. Mr. and Mrs. Shulman (Ilene) have two children, Mrs. Harold Hoffman, wife of Mr. Hoffman; and Michael Shulman, a student at the University of Toronto.

NO OTHER CAR CLINGS TO ROADS LIKE A PONTIAC

The way a Pontiac corners, you'd think it was part of the road . . . and it almost is. To make this the best car on the road, Pontiac designers started right down where the car meets the road—at the wheels. Pontiac's superb suspension keeps the car rock-steady round the corners. The almost frictionless Ball-Race steering gear gives you wonderfully precise handling—gives you that special kind of confidence that makes driving a Pontiac such a pleasure. But why not find out for yourself? A few minutes behind the wheel is all it takes. See your local Pontiac dealer today.
